

Army and Corps Posture Statement

U.S. Army, North (Fifth Army)

U.S. Army Training, Readiness and Mobilization Command
(First Army)

U.S. Army, Pacific

U.S. Army, South
(Sixth Army)

U.S. Army, Europe
(Seventh Army)

U.S. Army Forces
Central Command
(Third Army)

I Corps

III Corps

XVIII Airborne Corps

U.S. Army Special Operations Command

U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command

Military Surface Deployment and Distribution Command

U.S. Army Forces
Command

U.S. Army Materiel Command

U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command

U.S. Army Medical
Command

U.S. Army Training, Readiness and Mobilization Command executes pre-mobilization training and readiness oversight and post mobilization operations in order to provide trained and ready conventional reserve component forces to regional combatant commanders for the full spectrum of operations. Soldiers assigned to this command will wear the patch of the First Army to perpetuate its lineage and honors.

U.S. Army, South (Sixth Army) is the Army component of the U.S. Southern Command. U.S. Army, South (Sixth Army) is capable of assuming the duties of a JTF or a JFLCC — with augmentation from other services — and controlling operations. Soldiers assigned to this command will wear the patch of the Sixth Army to perpetuate its lineage and honors. It is based at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and more information can be found at www.usarso.army.mil.

U.S. Army, Pacific is capable of assuming the duties of a JTF or a JFLCC — with augmentation from other services — and controlling operations. The unit and lineage associated with the Army element of U.S. Pacific Command will be announced at a later date. For more information visit www.usarpac.army.mil.

U.S. Army, North (Fifth Army) is the Army component of the U.S. Northern Command. U.S. Army, North (Fifth Army) is capable of assuming the duties of a JTF or a Joint JFLCC — with augmentation from other services — and controlling operations in support of U.S. Northern Command's mission of homeland defense and civil support. Soldiers assigned to this command will wear the patch of the Fifth Army to perpetuate its lineage and honors. It is based at Fort Sam Houston, and more information can be found at www.northcom.mil.

U.S. Army, Europe (Seventh Army) is the Army component of the U.S. European Command. U.S. Army, Europe (Seventh Army) is capable of assuming the duties of a JTF or a JFLCC — with augmentation from other services — and controlling operations. Soldiers assigned to this command will wear the patch of the Seventh Army to perpetuate its lineage and honors. It is currently based in Heidelberg, Germany, and more information can be found at www.hqsareur.army.mil.

U.S. Army, Central (Third Army) is the Army component of the U.S. Central Command. U.S. Army, Central (Third Army) is capable of assuming the duties of a JTF or a JFLCC — with augmentation from other services — and controlling operations. Soldiers assigned to this command will wear the patch of the Third Army to perpetuate its lineage and honors. It is based in Atlanta, Ga., and more information can be found at www.arcent.army.mil.

I Corps is a three-star command headquarters capable of functioning as a JTF and a JFLCC. In a campaign like Afghanistan, the corps would serve as a combined or multi-national task force, either with direct operational control of brigade combat teams and support brigades, or with a division serving as Army Forces (ARFOR) if necessary. It will perpetuate the lineage and honors of I Corps. It is based at Fort Lewis, Wash., and more information can be found at www.lewis.army.mil/

III Corps is a three-star command headquarters capable of functioning as a JTF and a JFLCC. In a campaign like Afghanistan, the corps would serve as a combined or multi-national task force, either with direct operational control of brigade combat teams and support brigades, or with a division serving as Army Forces (ARFOR) if necessary. It will perpetuate the lineage and honors of III Corps. It is based at Fort Hood, Texas, and more information can be found at www.hood.army.mil/fthood

XVIII Airborne Corps is a three-star command headquarters capable of functioning as a JTF and a JFLCC. In a campaign like Afghanistan, the corps would serve as a combined or multi-national task force, either with direct operational control of brigade combat teams and support brigades, or with a division serving as Army Forces (ARFOR) if necessary. It will perpetuate the lineage and honors of XVIII Airborne Corps. It is based at Fort Bragg, N.C., and more information can be found at www.bragg.army.mil.

U.S. Army Special Operations Command: The mission of the U.S. Army Special Operations Command is to organize, train, educate, man, equip, fund, administer, mobilize, deploy and sustain Army special-operations forces to successfully conduct worldwide special operations across the range of military operations in support of regional combatant commanders, American ambassadors and other agencies as directed. It is based at Fort Bragg, and more information can be found at www.soc.mil/hqs\_home.htm.

Space and Missile Defense Command is the Army service component of U.S. Strategic Command. It conducts space operations and provides planning, integration, control and coordination of Army forces and capabilities in support of USSTRATCOM missions. The headquarters is in Huntsville, Ala., and more information can be found at www.smdc.army.mil.

Military Surface Deployment and Distribution Command has a mission to provide global surface deployment command and control and distribution operations to meet national security objectives in peace and war. The headquarters is in Alexandria, Va., and more information can be found at www.sddc.army.mil.

U.S. Army Forces Command: The mission of Forces Command is to train, mobilize, deploy, sustain, and reconstitute combat ready forces to meet combatant commanders' requirements across the spectrum of current and future operations. It is located in Atlanta, Ga., and more information can be found at www.forscom.army.mil

U.S. Army Materiel Command: The mission of Army Materiel Command is to provide superior technology, acquisition support and logistics to ensure dominant land force capability for Soldiers, the United States and our allies. The headquarters is at Fort Belvoir, Va., and more information can be found at www.amc.army.mil

U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command: The mission of Training and Doctrine Command is to recruit, train and educate the Army's Soldiers; develop leaders; support training in units; develop doctrine; establish standards; and build the future Army. The headquarters is at Fort Monroe, Va., and more information can be found at www.tradoc.army.mil.

U.S. Army Medical Command: The mission of the Army Medical Command is to project and sustain a healthy and medically protected force; to ensure our military forces are deployed in a state of optimal health, equipped to protect themselves from disease and injury; and to deploy a trained and equipped medical force that supports the Army Transformation. It is based at Fort Sam Houston, and more information can be found at www.armymedicine.army.mil/index.html.